

Teaching in English

"CHALLENGES & SECRETS" of Classroom Management Techniques

Date & Time: 15:30-17:00 Wednesday, February 21

Venue: Multi Purpose Room, 2F, Science Complex C
Kita-Aobayama Campus

In this seminar, educators will learn how to conduct the effective "student-centered teaching" in English-medium classes for international students, understanding the three important aspects as "language", "classroom management", and "culture", realizing the contrast of the expectation towards classes between international and Japanese students.

Lecturer: Todd ENSLEN (Institute for Excellence in Higher Education)

- 1986 Bachelor of Science (Zoology, Eastern Illinois University)
- 1989 Master of International Management (International Marketing, American Graduate School of Int'l Management)
- 1998 Master of Arts in Teaching English as a Second Language (University of Illinois at Urbana/Champaign (UIUC))

He has been teaching English and business communication at various educational institution. In 2009 he became a lecturer at Tohoku University and teaches English reading and communication courses to 1st- and 2nd-year students. As a member of Center for Professional Development, his role has steadily diversified. He conducts number of seminars/workshops for educators and graduate students even at other universities. He always motivates and empowers audience with practical hints for English expressions in the classroom, and also enlightens them on how to "active learning" strategies should be adapted to cultural contexts.

This Seminar is for:

- Educators who want to improve their English-medium classes
- Graduate students who hope to teach in the future
(International students are also welcome)
